Department of Political Science Admission Opening for the Session 2024-25

ABOUT THE DEPARTMENT

Founded in 1965, the Department of Political Science has a good reputation for academic excellence. Since its very inception the department has been trying to provide quality education amongst its students not necessarily limiting them to the theoretical aspect of the discipline. The department though started with a small number of students, over the years there has been an unprecedented increase in the number of students' enrollment. The growth of the dept. has coincided with the development of the discipline itself. Aligned with the National Education Policy (NEP) model, which champions the merits of interdisciplinarity, the department extends its offerings to include General Electives, Skill Enhancement Courses and Discipline-Centred Electives. The aim is mainly to cultivate and nurture the interpretative acumen and expressive prowess of its students within an intellectually stimulating environment. Presently the department consists of 4 faculty members whose research and interests span around different thematic areas in the discipline and they time and again have played the role of a mentor in the real sense of the term.
